
GOAL SETTING AS RELATED TO MOTIVATION AND SUCCESS

MOTIVATION- - Reason for action.
Goal-directed action.
The drive within each of us that moves us towards our personal goals.
Motivation is personal, individual, and private.

SUCCESS- - The progressive realization of personal, predetermined, worthwhile goals.
Success is a process. . .an ongoing process.
Success is definitely related to stated goals.
Success is personal. . .what is success for one is not success for another.
There is an ethical quality to success—that is, the goals must be worthwhile.

We cannot achieve our successes without motivation.

Our successes will not be fulfilling if they are not related specifically to our personal goals.

Success is not related to a specific incident or circumstance; rather, it is the active process of moving towards our goal.

You are successful as soon as you pick a specific goal, determine the roadblocks between you and your goal, determine how to overcome those roadblocks, and begin to follow your plan to action.

3% of the population is considered wealthy.

10% of the population is considered well off.

60% of the population is getting by.

27% of the population needs financial aid.

Interestingly enough, the main difference between the top 3% and the next 10% is that the top 3% has specific, written goals.

The next 10% has goals alright, but they are not specific, nor written.

The remainder have no goals whatsoever as far as their lives are concerned.

Goals are important. Without goals, you cannot achieve success.

Without specific written goals, you will not achieve a high level of success.

Having specific, written goals will help to motivate you to achieve the things in life which are important to you. In achieving these goals, you will be successful.
